UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

vs.

Defendant.

INFORMATION

The United States Attorney charges that:

GENERAL ALLEGATIONS

At various times relevant to this Indictment:

1. AmeriP.O.S. Inc. ("AmeriP.O.S.") was a Florida corporation incorporated in or around August 2002. AmeriP.O.S.'s principal place of business was located in Broward County at 1250 E. Hallandale Beach Boulevard, Suite 505, Hallandale, Florida.

2. AmeriP.O.S. engaged in the sale of point-of-sale ("P.O.S.") terminal business opportunities. For a minimum purchase price of approximately $12,000, potential purchasers were told they would receive several P.O.S. terminals, along with assistance in establishing, maintaining, and operating a P.O.S. terminal business. According to AmeriP.O.S, a business opportunity purchaser, known as a "distributor," would earn substantial profits when members of the public purchased products, such as pre-paid debit cards, pre-paid phone cards, and pre-paid Internet services, from the distributor's P.O.S. terminals.

3. Defendant MARTIN GELLER was an AmeriP.O.S. employee responsible for AmeriP.O.S's "closers," as more fully described below.

(Mail Fraud: 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341 and 2)

1. Paragraphs 1 through 3 of the General Allegations section of this Information are re-alleged and incorporated by reference as though fully set forth herein.

2. From in or around September 2002, through in or around May 2004, in Broward County, in the Southern District of Florida, and elsewhere, the defendant, did knowingly and willfully devise and intend to devise a scheme and artifice to defraud and to obtain money and property from others by means of materially false and fraudulent pretenses, representations, and promises, knowing that the pretenses, representations, and promises were false and fraudulent when made, and attempting to do so, did knowingly cause to be delivered certain mail matter by a private and commercial interstate carrier, according to the directions thereon.

PURPOSE OF THE SCHEME AND ARTIFICE

3. It was the purpose of the scheme and artifice for MARTIN GELLER and his accomplices to unlawfully enrich themselves by misappropriating monies from potential business opportunity purchasers by making materially false representations concerning, among other things, expected profits, the services provided to distributors, and the authenticity of AmeriP.O.S. references.

MANNER AND MEANS OF THE SCHEME AND ARTIFICE

The manner and means by which MARTIN GELLER and his accomplices sought to accomplish the purpose of the scheme and artifice included, among other things, the following:

4. AmeriP.O.S. placed advertisements on television, on the Internet, and in other media across the country, misrepresenting the profits that could be earned by purchasing an AmeriP.O.S. distributorship, and urging consumers to telephone a number that appeared in the advertisements.

5. Individuals who telephoned AmeriP.O.S. in response to its advertisements ("potential purchasers") were placed in touch with salesmen. AmeriP.O.S. used salesmen called "fronters" as the first point of contact with potential purchasers. AmeriP.O.S. instructed fronters on what to say to potential purchasers, as described below.

6. Fronters outlined the opportunity and determined whether the potential purchaser "qualified" to purchase an AmeriP.O.S. business opportunity and thereby become a "distributor." Fronters claimed that AmeriP.O.S. previously placed P.O.S. terminals in tremendously successful locations. Fronters said that AmeriP.O.S. wanted to set up terminals across the country with the help of distributors. Fronters further explained that purchasers would receive several P.O.S. terminals.

7. According to the fronters, AmeriP.O.S. found store locations in the purchaser's geographic area to place the terminals. The machines would then sell prepaid debit cards, pre-paid phone cards, pre-paid Internet services, and many other products and services. The AmeriP.O.S. distributor would receive commissions based upon sales from those terminals.

8. "Qualified" potential purchasers were transferred to another AmeriP.O.S. salesperson known to MARTIN GELLER as a "closer." MARTIN GELLER was responsible for assigning closers to potential purchasers.

9. Closers identified themselves to potential purchasers as a "Territory Directors" who were responsible for setting up distributors in the potential purchasers' geographic area. In reality, a closer did not specialize in any particular area of the country and took calls from any place in the United States. MARTIN GELLER knew that closers did not specialize in any particular area of the country and took calls from any place in the United States. The closer and potential purchaser scheduled an appointment to speak at a time after the potential purchaser received the AmeriP.O.S. brochure and spoke with AmeriP.O.S.'s references, as described below.

10. Using Fedex, accomplices of MARTIN GELLER sent potential purchasers professional-looking, glossy brochures. The brochures represented that, in addition to the terminals themselves, AmeriP.O.S. "provid[es] our distributors with many retail outlets to sell a variety of pre-paid products at no additional cost."

11. Enclosed in the brochures was a document entitled "Business Forecast/Daily Statistics." This document, which changed over time, purportedly described the performance of AmeriP.O.S. terminals. From in or around October 2002, through in or around September 2003, this document purported to state what a "Below Average Performing Terminal" earned, and what an "Average Performing Terminal" earned. In or around October 2003, AmeriP.O.S. changed the "Business Forecast/Daily Statistics" page of the brochure to state that the forecasts were "examples." AmeriP.O.S. salesmen, however, continued to represent that the examples were typical of actual terminal performance.

12. Accomplices of MARTIN GELLER provided potential purchasers with the names of references who claimed both to have had success operating AmeriP.O.S. terminals and who vouched for the support and assistance that AmeriP.O.S. provided. After the potential purchaser received the brochure by Fedex and spoke with references, the AmeriP.O.S. closer made an extended sales pitch to the potential purchaser. During this sales pitch, the AmeriP.O.S. closer made a number of representations about the AmeriP.O.S. business opportunity, earnings projections, earnings of prior purchasers, and the help and support AmeriP.O.S. provided.

13. Accomplices of MARTIN GELLER used a transaction called "Back-from-the-Dead," or "BFD," to attempt to resurrect any deal he failed to close. If the closer was unsuccessful, another salesman called the potential purchaser back within a few days or weeks in an attempt to resurrect the deal. This BFD salesman falsely represented that another person had cancelled a large order of terminals for personal reasons and that, as a result, AmeriP.O.S. could offer these terminals to the purchaser for a substantially reduced rate.

14. AmeriP.O.S used a transaction called a "load" to induce individuals who purchased the AmeriP.O.S. business opportunity to purchase more. If the closer was successful at closing a sale, another salesperson, known to MARTIN GELLER as a "loader," would contact the distributor within a few days or weeks for the purpose of soliciting an additional investment. Like the BFD salesman, the loader falsely claimed that another person had cancelled a large order of terminals for personal reasons and that, as a result, AmeriP.O.S. could offer these terminals to the purchaser for a substantially reduced rate.

15. MARTIN GELLER knew that the closers he supervised made numerous materially false statements to potential purchasers, including, among others, the following:

Materially False Statements

a. That, after making their investment, the only thing distributors needed to do was plug in the terminals and put up posters and that AmeriP.O.S. performed all the legwork of the business when, in truth and in fact, the most difficult and time consuming part of the business, securing viable locations in which to place the terminals, was largely the distributor's responsibility because of AmeriP.O.S.'s inability and unwillingness to do so;

b. That AmeriP.O.S. would secure high-traffic, profitable locations for distributors to place their terminals in the distributor's respective local areas, when, in truth and in fact, AmeriP.O.S. was frequently unsuccessful at providing its distributors with local terminal locations, much less high-traffic locations;

c. That AmeriP.O.S. had already found locations for placement of distributors' terminals that would be available to a distributor as soon as he or she paid the initial investment when, in truth and in fact, AmeriP.O.S. did not have locations for the purchaser's terminals at the time he or she invested;

d. That if a terminal underperformed in a given location, AmeriP.O.S. would relocate the terminal for free when, in truth and fact, AmeriP.O.S. locators were so far behind in finding initial locations for distributors' terminals that they did not have time to relocate underperforming machines;

e. That the tables listed on the "Business Forecast" sheet of AmeriP.O.S. brochures accurately represented the commissions earned by a below-average and an average AmeriP.O.S. terminal when, in truth and in fact, below-average and average AmeriP.O.S. terminals, respectively, earned substantially less money than the amounts shown in the brochures; and

f. That a distributor should expect to earn back the cost of his or her investment in the AmeriP.O.S. business opportunity in 12 months or less when, in truth and in fact, not a single distributor had earned back his or her investment in 12 months or less.

USE OF THE MAILS

16. In or around January 2004, for the purpose of executing and in furtherance of the aforesaid scheme and artifice to defraud and to obtain money and property by means of materially false and fraudulent pretenses, representations, and promises, and attempting to do so, MARTIN GELLER did knowingly cause to be delivered by a private and commercial interstate carrier, a package from a consumer in Spring Valley, California, to AmeriP.O.S in Hallandale, Florida.

In violation of Title 18, United States Code, Sections 1341 and 2.
